Introduction

This "Redefined Corporate Communications" is intended to assist practitioners in aligning communications strategy to organisational imperatives and transitioning from a focus on tactics to developing and implementing communications strategy. It will guide the practitioner from research to programme implementation while emphasising the importance of corporate communications in achieving corporate objectives.
It will also demonstrate the significance of measurement and evaluation as key starting points for optimising both strategies and tactics in corporate communications.

This training course will focus attention on:

- Aligning Communications and Organisational Goals.
- Identifying and Strengthening Internal Gaps.
- Implementation Strategy.
- Measurement and Evaluation.
- Designing subsequent Iteration.
