Introduction

This course is a must for anyone looking to improve their management and leadership skills. The ability of the leadership team to create an environment that inspires employees to give their best is directly related to the success of any organisation. 'Great Leaders make us feel Safe,' says Simon Sinek. As a result, great things happen when our people feel safe to explore, grow, and innovate. This training seminar will help you develop your ability to get more of what you want more frequently.

When was the last time you had five days to consider yourself in the context of managing and leading others? Among the many diagnostic questions posed in this seminar, 'Can a Manager Motivate?' will be thoroughly examined using a variety of learning platforms. So, if you're ready to boost up your leadership thinking, this course is for you.

This course will enable the participants to:

- Build strong working relationships with their team and peer groups
- Accelerate buy-in and gain commitment from those around them
- Achieve results faster through efficiency
- Create a motivational winning environment
- Develop a personal learning framework for continued Leadership growth

Course Objectives of Achieving & Motivating Towards Excellence
